

Stourhead, Wiltshire

Στουρηνῶν

King Alfred's Tower

Possible site of battlefield

Grid ref

Notes

An ascendable, three sided, windowless tower now in the possession of The National Trust. It was built by one of the Hoare family of Stourhead to commemorate one of the sites alleged to be that of the battlefield where Alfred conclusively defeated the Danes.

